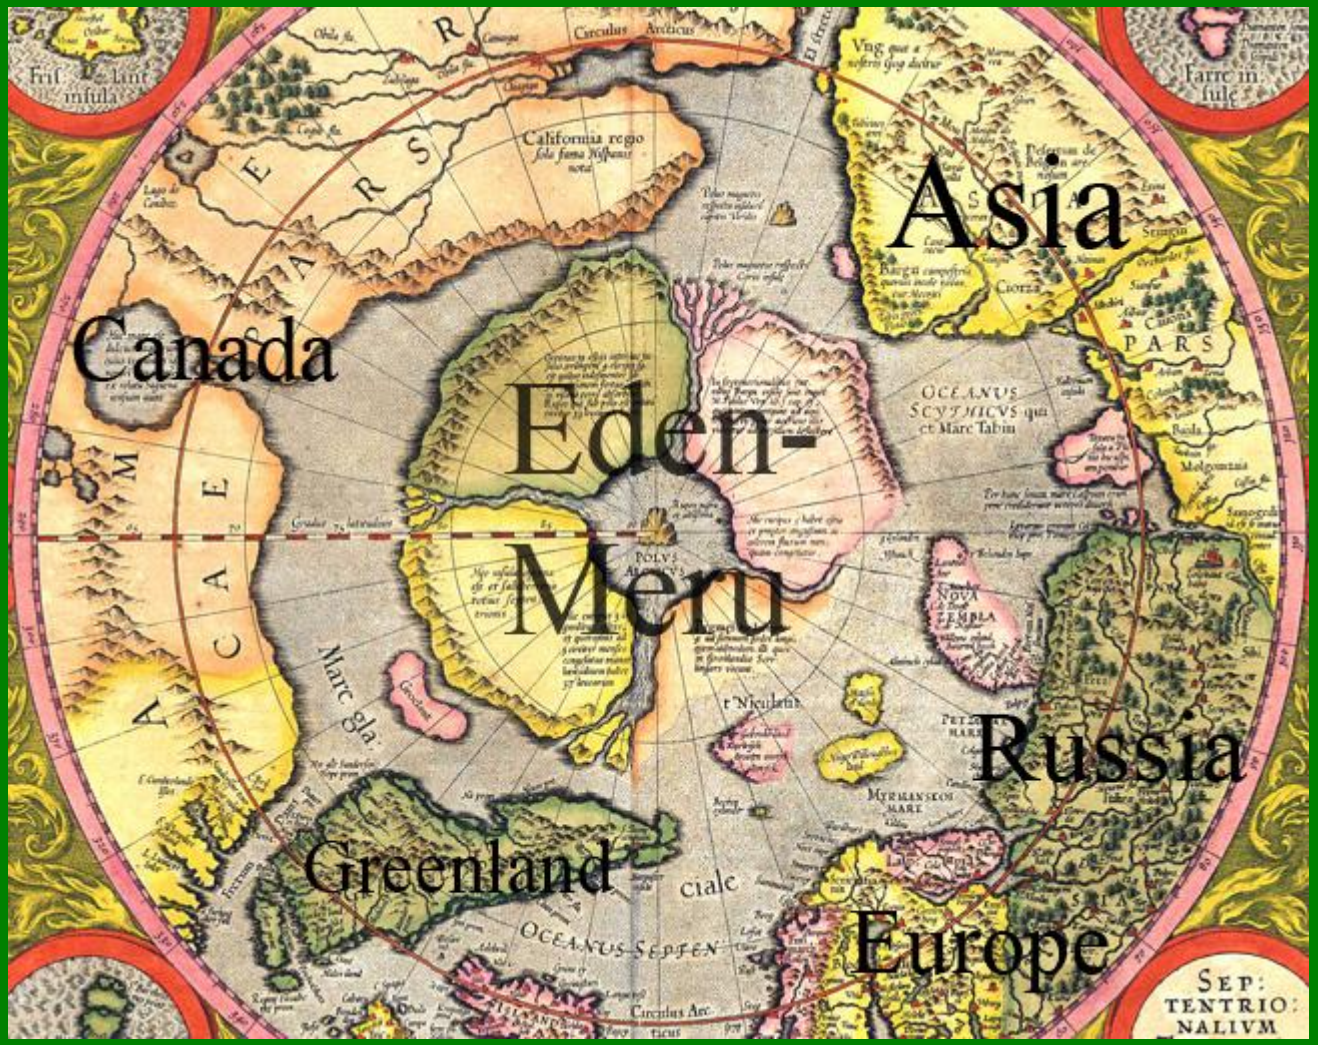
Mercator's Meru



Gerardus Mercator:1512(Mar.5) to 1594(Dec.2) was a Flemish cartographer and mathematician born in Rupelmonde, Flanders(now Belgium). He developed the Mercator projection world map still in use today. Left: his unusual Arctic map of 1595. Below: an enlargement. What is the meaning of this map? Note: the continental names are added by this author for clarity.

The search for a terrestial Eden or Paradise has forever eluded the grasp of most mortals yet some have succeeded or come very close to achieving this quest -or at least acquiring solid information about it. Men like Olaf Janssen(The Smoky God) and George William Emerson(Etidorpha) are two such individuals. A summary of their stories can be found in the Hollow Earth section of this site and their full stories are available on Rodney Cluff's Our Hollow Earth site.

As stated in some of my other articles, Heaven or Paradise is always an inner or central location(usually bright, warm, or illumined) whether it be at the center of our galaxy or at the center of our beings and peripheries or outer locations indicate hell, cold, or darkness. The best example of this is our own solar system Sun which is centrally located and bright. Our Sun is the Heaven or Paradise for this solar system It is where all souls or spirits go when they have graduated from Earth or any other planet in our solar system. From the Sun they can then go on to other Suns or the Galactic center.

According to Rodney Cluff and his interpretation of the scriptures there are two massive companion stars at the center of our Milky Way galaxy around which all the other stars and systems(including ours) revolve. The Bible cals these two objects Kolob and Oliblish. According to Rodney they are some 18.6 billion miles in diameter and take about 1000 years to rotate onc on their axis -hence the phrase "one day is as a thousand years to the Lord". Kolob and Olibish represent the Faher-Son relationship which is represented throughout the cosmos in the form of binary star systems.

At the center of Kolob is an inner central sun or luminary and the Throne of God. God is a relative term here. All suns are hollow and centrally enthroned. So there is a hiearchy of Gods from the Creation God to the Galactic God, to the Solar god, etc. The pattern is the same all the way down to the atom whose center is also a God.

What about Earth? Yes it too has a heavenly center with a throne. If Archangel Michael sits enthroned at the inner center of our Sun, then who is sitting on the throne at the inner center of our planet? Is it Buddha or Jesus or any one of he other great Masters of our Earth planet? Or is the throne still empty and the crowning ceremony still at hand? One of the physical signs that a planet has been enthroned are its rings. The number of rings(or moons?) are the number of enthronements. Saturn has obviously undergone many planetary kings/queens.

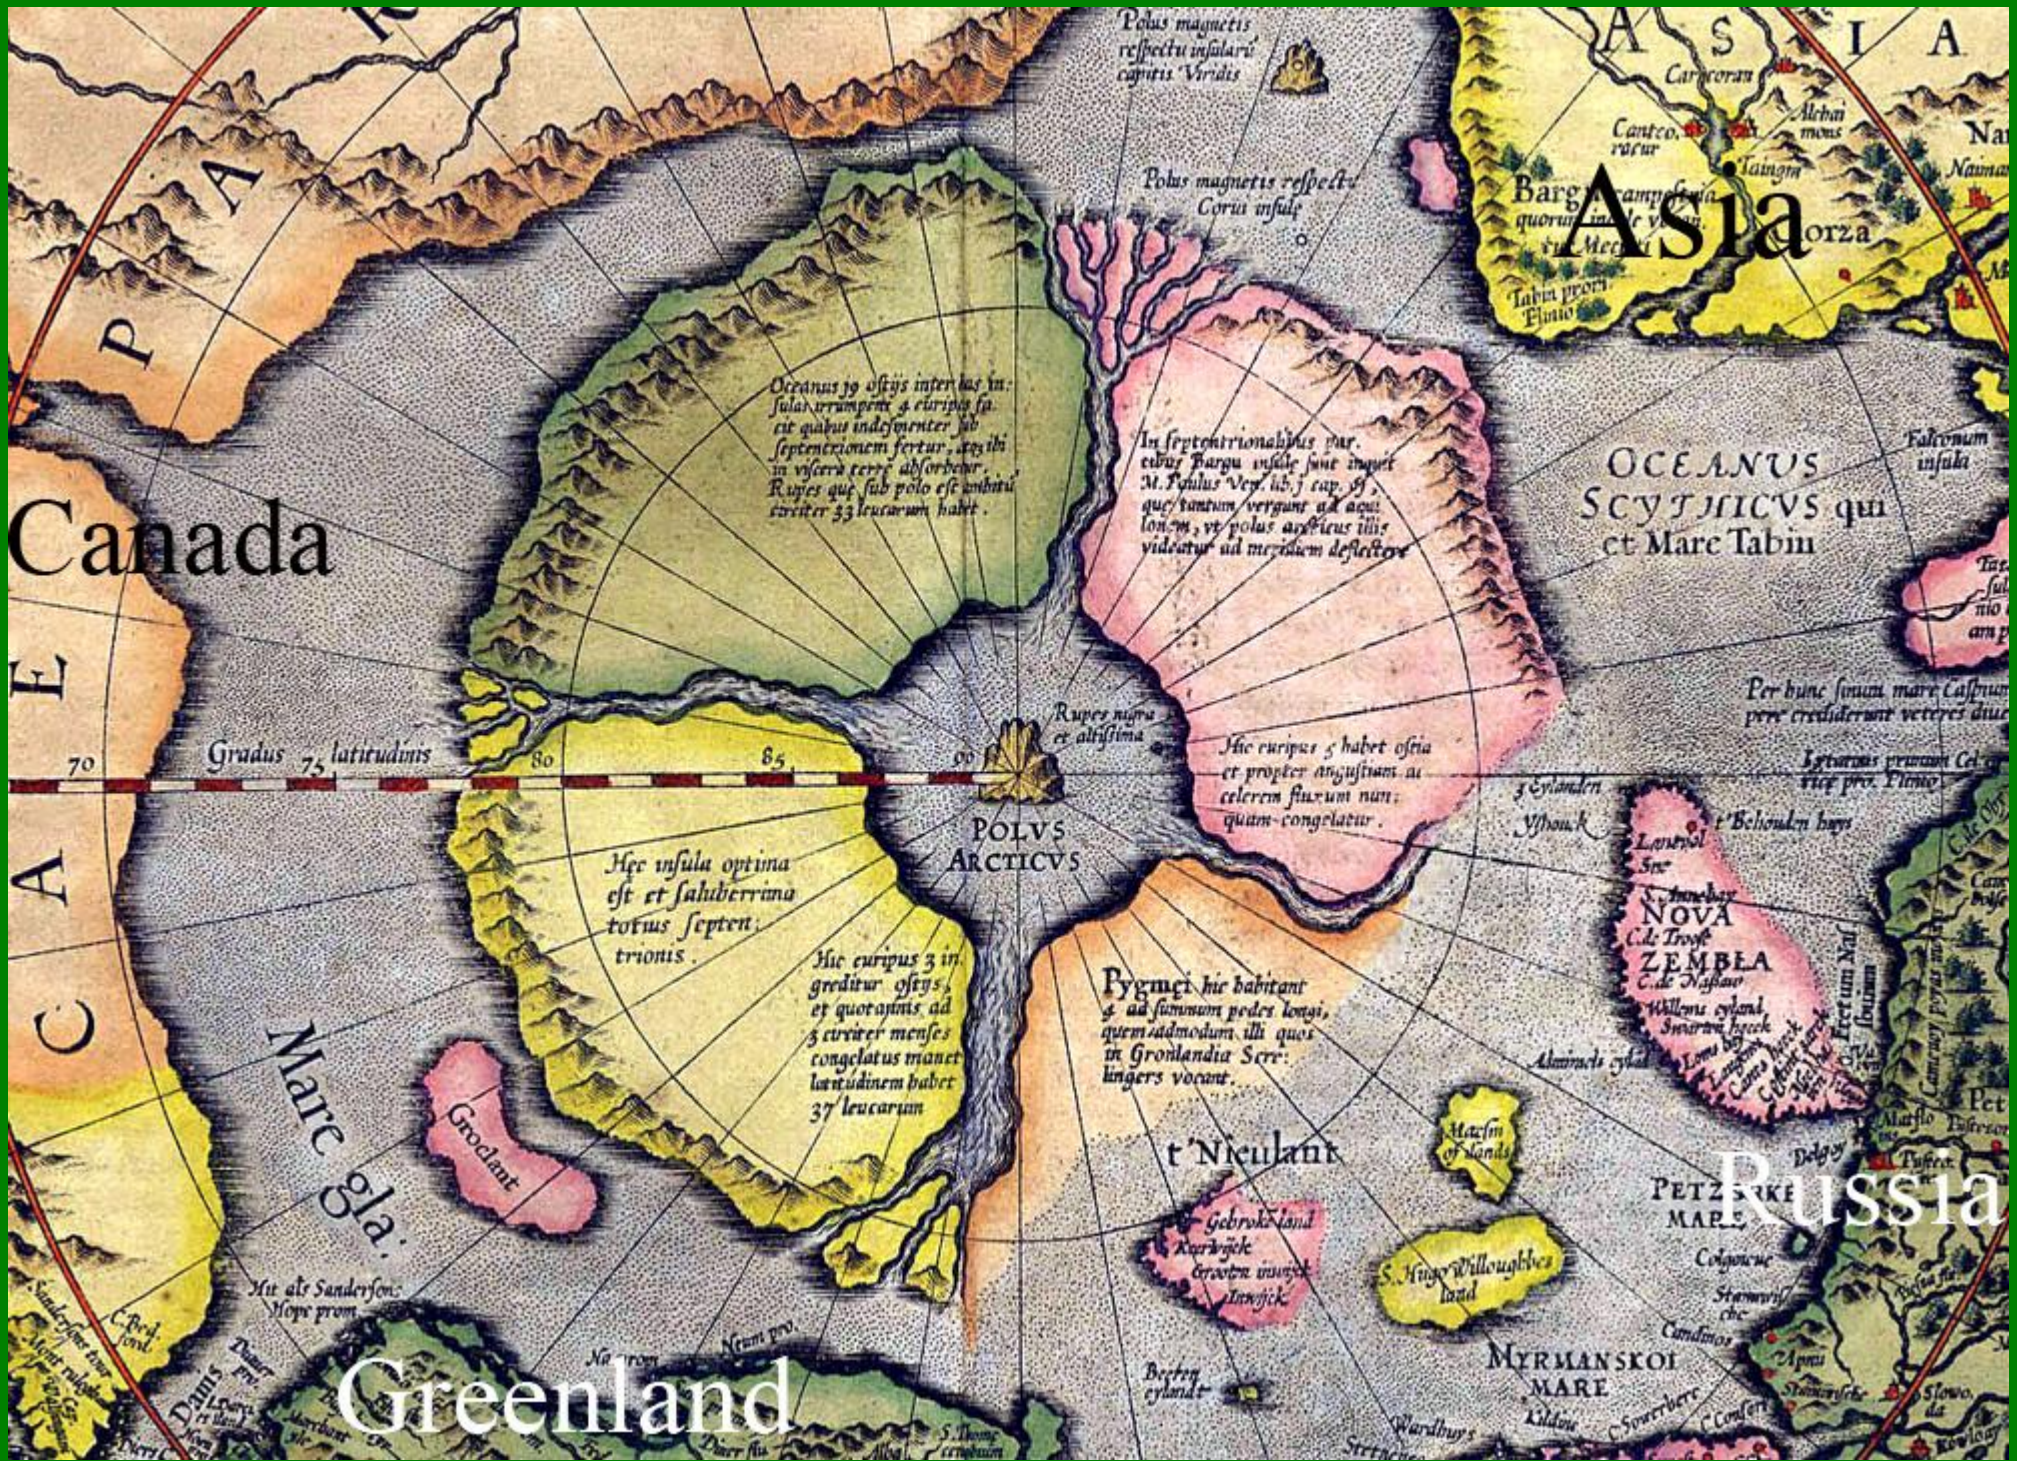
Earth does not appear to have a ring or it is very faint so there is probably no decide central ruler as yet. Sanat(Satan) Kumara wants this but he is confined to being the King of the World and not Heaven or Paradise. Kumara's throne was/is under the Gobi desert in Mongolia. There are three planetary thrones, the primary one being on/in the Earth's inner central sun or luminary. The other, reflecting the first, is on Mount Meru located in the Inner Earth Eden on the concave surface of our hollow planet. Rodney Cluff locates it geographically some 800 miles below the Arkansas-Missouri(USA) territory.

Eden or Meru is the inner Earth Paradise center from which Adam and his race were expelled after disobeying their God. The conditions of Eden(perfect climate and atmosphere) made it possible for humans to be 14 feet tall or live close to 1000 years. When expelled to the outer surface, Adam and his descendants were exposed to a vastly inferior environment and began to degenerate slowly living shorter and more miserable lives untill they reached our current state. We are now one tenth of what we were in the Golden Age of humanity when Gods and men walked and talked together.

The third planetary throne is on the outer Earth surface, supposedly Jerusalem, but the actual chair/throne has been transported to London, England by the Ephraim-Mannaseh tribes who migrated there over the last two and one-half millenniums. According to many theologians, the double Ephraim-Manneseh tribe of Joseph became the English Great-Britain-USA nations of today. The Judah tribe remained scattered worldwide untill the 20th century when they regrouped in modern-day Israel(not to be confused with ancient Israel) and America. Remanants of the other ten tribes which migrated with Ephraim-Mannesh settled into northwestern Europe.

But what about the original ancient Hebrew tribes that escaped Egypt under Moses and Joshua and the supernatural "cloud" that guided them through the desert? According to Rodney Cluff, these ended up in the Hollow Earth where they are to this day and await our reunion. They live on that super continent in the city or country of Eden which is the true terrestial Paradise today. Olaf Janssen met them in 1888. He even got to see and speak with the King of Eden who is at least fourteen feet tall!

Everything is larger in the inner Earth Paradise because of the ideal conditions there. It is a cocooned environment with an ideal climate and a magical ambience or atmosphere rich in prana or life force. Gravity is also much less there and there are no extremes of night and day or cold and heat. Most of the inhabitants are vegetarian or fruitarian and many don't eat at all! There is no pollution or politics as we know it and people spend most of their time on learning or self-development. They know what's going on the outer surface and would like to help us but keep their distance knowing we are rebellious and must learn our lessons the hard way. They will intervene but only when they must(such as in the case of an all out nuclear war). The outer surface world powers are acutely aware of the existence of the inner earth inhabitants but are are helpless before them. Occasionally, the right humans are allowed to join their society.



Asia
Canada
Greenland
Russia
OCEANVS SCYTHICVS qui et Mare Tabin
POLVS ARCTICVS
Mare gla.
Gradus 75 latitudinis
70
80
85
90
Pygmæi hic habitant
t'Nieulant
NOVA ZEMBLA
MYRMANSKOI MARE
Groclant

Inner Earth Eden or Meru once had its outer Earth counterpart(s). Ideally, this was near the poles which were then warm and liveable, but some cosmic catastrophe changed all that. Records of these Edens survive through myth and stone and there is evidence to suggest that these pre-Diluvian civilizations had the technology for aerial travel and accurate map-making. Some of these map records have survived or were reproduced down through the ages and are basis of some of Mercator's work.

The Mercator maps shown here are accurate but disconnected depictions of our arctic geography as observed or understood in the 16th century. Gerardus Mercator(1512-1594) was a mathematician who evolved into one of the world's finest cartographers and whose system of map-making we still use today. Probably his most famous work is his 1595 map of the arctic region(shown here) which shows an unlikely landmass at the north pole divided into four regions by four rivers pointing towards the cardinal points like a compass. Modern cartographers are still struggling to understand why Mercator included this oddity in his map. Oronce Finé, another excellent French cartographer of the same era, also shows a landmass with a fourfold division. Both based their maps on earlier sources the origins of which are uncertain.

Such a landmass obviously does not exist at the polar north but remnants of it do. What Mercator and other cartographers of his time are showing(unknowingly) is an arctic landmass that existed there many thousands of years ago in pre-Diluvian times. They did not have the technology to verify their conclusions but they did the best they could and it is obvious by looking at the maps that there is some confusion and overlapping in regards to certain land masses. According to Valery Uvarov in the article entitled "The Second Birth of Hyperborea" what Mercator depicts as Greenland is actually northern Labrador, and Greenland itself is the true Meru or Hyperborea.

Meru's four rivers are driven by powerful magnetic currents that along Earth's main meridian lines and circle the entire globe dividing it into four quarters. Since our planet is hollow with polar openings, these rivers flow inward around the polar mouth and then back out again. Deep-sea expeditions have verified these powerful currents at the bottom of our major oceans. Olaf Janssen and his father of Smoky God fame got caught in one of these currents which brought them from the Norwegian arctic all the way down to inner Earth Eden. Mercator puts a magnetic rock or loadstone at the center of Eden as well as another just outside of it. One is the Earth's magnetic pole and the other belongs to the planet's inner sun which drives and maintains our planet.

What was once a dry and warm Greenland paradise was obviously subjected to great calamities and was broken up(along with Alantis and other lands) and displaced geographically. This appears to have occurred between the Ages of Leo and Cancer around 8,700 BC. The destruction and chaos is believed to have been instigated by a marauding heavenly body that wrecked its way through the solar systen causing huge earthquakes and a worlwide Flood(lesser ones must have followed). It was during the Age of Cancer(8700-6,400 BC) that the Earth acquired its present Moon which along with the Heavenly Invader caused massive changes to our planet and its lifeforms. The Moon came dangerously close to the Earth at various points and dumped most of its waters here, which is why our planet has so much water. Eventually the Moon's orbit stabilized and the calamities subsided.

Large and mysterious Greenland is currently the property of EDen-mark. Is Greenland the remnant of Hyperboria/Thule/Meru/Eden? What will we find here as the ice and snow continue to melt?